WELCOME TO MUSIC CITY USA – Nashville Tennessee – and the Spring 2019 USLAW NETWORK Client Conference. Join us March 28 - 30, 2019, in exciting Nashville - where folks come to be country stars...and country stars come to be home.

But before we experience the sounds of Music City, we’ll first experience what USLAW does best – top notch educational presentations that are concise, clear and on point. Our five areas of concentration will be Construction Law, Insurance Law, Retail and Hospitality Law, Transportation and Logistics, and finally, Data Privacy and Security. Each track delivers up-to-date information and analysis of some of our industry’s hottest topics. Add to the mix, the dynamic and inspirational presentation by keynote Dr. Rick Rigsby and you have the formula for an unmatched educational opportunity.

But eventually we give into the temptations and the sounds of Nashville, leaving the classroom for an afternoon of honky-tonk. From recording studios to the Listening Room, to walking with icons Johnny Cash and Patsy Cline to feeding wild animals at the Nashville Zoo, you’ll finish your day with a real taste of what makes Nashville tick.

But don't get too comfortable, because nothing shakes, rattles and rolls quite like a Nashville Night. Sure Nashville is known for it's country music... but its also home to a very upscale - and flavorful - culinary scene. Experience Nashville's five-star dining at our opening night Dine Around. We'll crank it up a bit the following nights with an unbelievable evening with legends inside the Country Music Hall of Fame, and closing event, the Garden Party Spring Soiree.

Nashville in the springtime...make plans now to join us in March in the heart of Country Music. Boots optional.

AGC HOUR
During this interactive session, we will discuss the impact, influence and benefits of the Associated General Contractors of America in addressing construction law issues at the state and federal level across the United States. The discussion will address current issues and hot topics relating to recent legal trends, developments and challenges faced by the contractors and construction professionals in the United States.

WHEN OSHA COMES CALLING
Whether the result of an accident or a complaint, nobody likes it when OSHA shows up at their jobsite or facility. A panel of experts will discuss best practices for reducing the likelihood of an OSHA investigation, managing the inspection, and responding to citations issued.

FALSE CLAIMS ACT: THE NEW CONSTRUCTION HAMMER
This session will highlight the ever increasing use of the federal False Claims Act and its various state counterparts to combat alleged contractor fraud on public projects. The panelists will discuss what can trigger a case and the best ways in which to avoid violations.

RENEWABLE ENERGY: WHY THE CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY IS A FAN
Renewable energy projects are booming across the United States. During this hour-long session, the panel will discuss the unique contracting issues presented when dealing with these types of projects plus interesting and challenging projects to date.

WEATHER-RELATED EVENTS – HURRICANES, FLOODS, AND EARTHQUAKES (OH MY!) – (JOINT SESSION WITH USLAW INSURANCE LAW PRACTICE GROUP)
Natural disasters are unpredictable and devastating. They wreak havoc on lives, homes and businesses. This past year we’ve seen many natural disasters strike the north, south, east and west. What can you do to be prepared for when disasters occur? How do you prepare for delays and/or destruction caused by natural disasters? When insurance is unavailable or inadequate to cover the damages, lawsuits against builders and contractors soon follow. The panel of construction and insurance professionals will discuss the challenges which result in both areas of law. Discussions will include how to handle weather-related events that take place during construction projects, steps you can take to be better prepared and the related coverage issues that arise.
INSURANCE COVERAGE IN THE #METOO AGE
(JOINT SESSION WITH PROFESSIONAL LIABILITY PRACTICE GROUP)
This session features a discussion of ongoing insurance coverage litigation involving #metoo claims. Topics will include the declaratory judgment action pending against Harvey Weinstein, how the insurance disputes affect the defense and ultimate resolution of the claims, best practices for corporations facing such claims, and impact on the insurance industry. Key learnings and best practices shared will help attendees address claims should they arise and be prepared before they even happen.

CANNABIS AND INSURANCE
There has been robust discussion - and in some cases even voting - across the country to legalize recreational marijuana in several states, medical marijuana in even more states and all while marijuana still remains illegal under federal law. With the changing tide, what are the issues plaguing insurance companies and corporations alike with the legalization of marijuana? Can your cannabis business be insured and is that insurance worth the paper it is written on? How are insurance companies underwriting these risks and what are the pitfalls. These and many more questions will be addressed and answered during this session.

INSURING 2030
Who has a crystal ball? If we could insure the future, what would it look like? While the future may at times be difficult to predict, this session will take a hard look into what it means to and how one would insure the future. There will be a guided discussion with the audience about insurance issues arising from predicted future claims (i.e. weather, drones, AI, automated vehicles, etc.). What do you expect will affect insurance in the future? Come ready to discuss.

“HOT TOPICS” IN INSURANCE LAW
There is a seemingly endless array of important issues impacting the insurance industry and insurance law. This session will feature an interactive open discussion of “hot topics” in insurance law today. A panel of attorneys and clients will help navigate and discuss these “hot topics,” with plenty of dialogue and exchange among all attendees. What keeps you up at night? We want to know. Let’s talk about it.

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE SUMMARY JUDGMENT AND APPEAL?
Some contend that the art of preparing a case for dispositive motion has been lost. Unfortunately, there are several factors in today’s litigation practice that validate this contention. We will examine several of those factors, including the differing outcomes and costs associated with pursuing such motions in state court versus federal court, the ever-growing trend of early case resolution, overall risk adversity due to unpredictable and outrageous jury verdicts and a general cost/benefit analysis. We will also examine how failing to posture a case for summary judgment can cost one considerable settlement leverage at the mediation table.

INITIAL CASE ASSESSMENTS AND EVALUATIONS: WHAT DOES THE RETAIL CLIENT WANT TO KNOW AND WHEN?
With the proliferation of advertising firms filing first notice lawsuits coupled with 98% of filed civil cases being settled, what are clients looking for and when in developing internal reserves, settlement authority and claim strategies. This interactive discussion will center on how to bridge the gap between the initial investigative cost and early resolution.

NAVIGATING THE WATERS WHEN DEFENDING CLAIMS BY MINORS
Claims by minors bring unique issues and challenges with regard to investigating, defending and resolving claims. This presentation will touch upon such issues as statute of limitations, the role of the guardian ad litem, negotiating with emotional parents, to predicting jury outcomes with the sympathetic plaintiff.

THE 1000-POUND GORILLA: MITIGATING LEGAL COST FROM THE ATTORNEY PERSPECTIVE
As a follow-up to the popular 2017 spring conference presentation where a panel of clients outlined the factors they take into consideration when evaluating the effectiveness of outside counsel’s representation, this follow-up session will weave in the attorney perspective. This program is intended to be an open discussion between an attorney panel and audience members, and attorneys will address challenges sometimes presented by billing and case reporting guidelines, working attorney restrictions and other client-specific mandates. This forum is an opportunity for both client and outside counsel to learn from one another through conversations that need to take place before it is “too late.” Topics will range from the choice of panel counsel, alternative fee arrangements and bill review programs to expert discovery and retention, early resolution and mediation.

FRAUD AND CORRUPTION IN PERSONAL INJURY LITIGATION
This session will take a behind-the-scenes look at fraudulent schemes to stage slip-and-falls. Discussions will center on referral relationships between private investigative firms and doctors and the competitive nature of true ambulance chasing and advertising. Panelists will discuss the impact of these underlying issues in defending suits and the importance of practicing with a heightened awareness to what may be going on behind the scenes.
THE FUTURE IS NOW

UTILIZING APPELLATE COUNSEL BEFORE YOU NEED THEM
In this session, we explore the counterintuitive economy achieved by retaining appellate counsel for the life of a case. Appellate lawyers can anticipate how to protect the record in discovery and at trial, preserve good results and avoid bad ones.

NIPPING THE “EXTORTION CASE” IN THE BUD
On the other side of the economics spectrum we have “Extortion Cases,” which present questionable theories of liability and limited damages, but can be difficult – and expensive – to get rid of. Our panelists share their thoughts and methods about how to dispose of these matters as efficiently as possible.

THE “NEW” STANDARD OF CARE – TECHNOLOGY
The plaintiff’s bar is now asking what you didn’t have on your truck. Is the failure to use technology a legitimate cause of action? In this session, we explore whether collision avoidance technology is the current standard of care. In addition, we will discuss the current status of rulemaking with respect to this technology.

TECHNOLOGY ON ITS HEAD
What happens when technology does not do what it is supposed to do? Should the trucking industry point fingers at the “new technology?” In a related topic, we will discuss the wisdom and/or viability of pointing the finger at the manufacturers of collision avoidance technology, in the event it does not work as advertised.

AUTOMATIC BUT FOR THE PEOPLE: AUTONOMOUS VEHICLES AND OTHER SCIENCE FICTION TURNED FACT
The trucking industry’s autonomous future is here. Our panel members discuss the status of autonomous tractors and their impact on the industry, including whether they will help with qualified driver shortages and how they present exposure to new forms of risk.

KEEP YOUR HAND ON YOUR WALLET: THE PLAINTIFF’S PLAN OF ATTACK FROM THE PLAINTIFF’S AND MEDIATOR’S PERSPECTIVE
They say the best settlements are those where both parties dislike the result at least somewhat. In this program, the plaintiff’s lawyer and mediators on our panel do their best to unpack this truism and provide insights from the other side. Also, this session will provide insight into the dynamics of the plaintiff’s room in response to mediation moves and tactics.

REVISITING THE PLAINTIFF’S PLAYBOOK
In this session, we take another look at the Plaintiff’s Playbook. We will discuss new theories of liability, heightened standard of care arguments, and damages arguments such as foregoing claims for economic damages in favor of non-economic damages only.

RUNNING THIN AT THE MARGINS: THE DRIVER SHORTAGE AND THE RISKS INVOLVED IN HIRING MARGINALY QUALIFIED DRIVERS
Trucking is a notoriously tough business with sometimes thin profit margins. One of the issues affecting those margins is the current driver shortage. Our panelists will assess how the absence of highly qualified drivers compels companies to hire marginally qualified drivers, which leads to a whole host of increased liability risks.
PRIVACY & SECURITY COMPLIANCE: THE GOOD, THE BAD, AND THE UGLY
Has the mentality of “it will never happen to me” been a realistic approach to security compliance for companies, big and small? Could your company be in legal hot water for simply over-promising on the security of customer data? This discussion will delve into the various laws, regulatory actions, penalties and unfair and deceptive trade practices that you may not have even realized were lurking. Join us as we consider the nuts and bolts of privacy compliance learned from a range of real-life experiences.

INFORMATION AND SECURITY BEST PRACTICES
Understanding the way “best practice” is used (or misused) in the information security context, and the basis for those conclusions, is critical to assessing the true value of any practice to your organization. This presentation will take a broader view of security and information management, including risk management of your third party vendors and contracts your company has, to examine commonly recommended “best practices” associated with information security. Join us to help you understand what are truly “best” practices.

PLANNING YOUR BREACH RESPONSE AND CYBER INSURANCE CLAIM: IT STARTS TODAY
A company’s greatest data or cybersecurity threat may not be some anonymous outsider—it could be your newest or most senior employee. Yet, companies may direct the bulk of their cybersecurity efforts at IT systems and information management, instead of employee training and discipline. Using real world examples, this presentation will focus on why a breach response — and cyber insurance — can help you sleep better at night.

NEW TECHNOLOGIES – IOT, BLOCKCHAIN, 5GW, AI: THE BENEFITS AND PITFALLS
Advancements in technology are driving improved customer experiences and corporate efficiency in every sector of the economy. From blockchain and smart contracts, to artificial intelligence and data driven decision making, to innovative commercial applications of the Internet of Things (IoT), companies and law departments need to balance the risk of using new technology you may not fully understand with the risk of not using them. This panel will explore the legal, compliance and evidentiary issues behind the emerging and transformative technologies impacting your industries.

FRAUD, HACKERS AND SCAMS: THOSE WHO DO NOT LEARN FROM HISTORY ARE CONDEMNED TO REPEAT IT
Social-engineering — for instance, opening an email attachment forwarded by your “customer” only to have malware infect your system — is, today, commonplace. But how did we arrive in these cyber wars we see every day and what is the next wave of hacks and scams? This presentation will provide a History 101 of frauds, hacks and scams perpetuated to date and consider what cyber threats are on the horizon. Being an A-student in this class will arm you in a world where one mouse click can wreak havoc on your business.
